	Empowering patients is the way to go - yes? And yet still many of our patients 'relapse' into old habits after a while. Can the success rate be improved? How might a long-term empowering method differ from what you already do? The devil is in the details. In the 90 minute workshop we examine the possibilities to fine-tune your work. The methodology is based on several decades of experience and action research in more than 20 countries, focused on starting and supporting a long-term process for self-driven cumulative behaviour change. We may also consider one or more theories of empowerment, including the different roles of 'nudging' and empowering.
